Disclosure Summary

Disclosure Information

What you should know about reported disclosure events:

(1) Certain thresholds must be met before an event is reported to IARD, for example:

- A law enforcement agency must file formal charges before an Investment Adviser Representative is required to report a particular criminal event.;
- A customer dispute must involve allegations that an Investment Adviser Representative engaged in activity that violates certain rules or conduct governing the industry and that the activity resulted in damages of at least $5,000.

(2) Disclosure events in IAPD reports come from different sources:

As mentioned in the "About IAPD" section on page 1 of this report, information contained in IAPD comes from Investment Adviser Representatives, firms and regulators. When more than one of these sources reports information for the same disclosure event, all versions of the event will appear in the IAPD report. The different versions will be separated by a solid line with the reporting source labeled.

(3) There are different statuses and dispositions for disclosure events:

- A disclosure event may have a status of pending, on appeal, or final.
 - A "pending" disclosure event involves allegations that have not been proven or formally adjudicated.
 - A disclosure event that is "on appeal" involves allegations that have been adjudicated but are currently being appealed.
 - A "final" disclosure event has been concluded and its resolution is not subject to change.
- A final disclosure event generally has a disposition of adjudicated, settled or otherwise resolved.
 - An "adjudicated" matter includes a disposition by (1) a court of law in a criminal or civil matter, or (2) an administrative panel in an action brought by a regulator that is contested by the party charged with some alleged wrongdoing.
 - A "settled" matter generally represents a disposition wherein the parties involved in a dispute reach an agreement to resolve the matter. Please note that Investment Adviser Representatives and firms may choose to settle customer disputes or regulatory matters for business or other reasons.
 - A "resolved" matter usually includes a disposition wherein no payment is made to the customer or there is no finding of wrongdoing on the part of the Investment Adviser Representative. Such matters generally involve customer disputes.

(4) You may wish to contact the Investment Adviser Representatives to obtain further information regarding any of the disclosure events contained in this IAPD report.

Allegations:

FINRA Rule 2010, NASD Rules 1031, 2110, 2210(D)(1)(A), 2210(D)(1)(B), 2310, 3040: Conrad recommended an entity's note agreements to customers when he lacked the proper license, a Series 7, to sell these securities. Conrad received a referral fee of $12,653.77 for a transaction and in other transactions he received no payment. Conrad also recommended the entity's products and initiated the transaction process for customers to purchase the note agreements, but the state of Texas filed an injunction against the entity before these transactions were completed; Conrad received no payments. Conrad made unsuitable recommendations to customers. These customers purchased the entity's products solely based upon Conrad's recommendation. Conrad represented that the products were safe, guaranteed a high return within 5 years, and were suitable for investors seeking to preserve capital. Conrad, however, lacked any factual basis to make these claims-Conrad did not have any experience with the entity's products and failed to conduct the required due diligence. Yet, without any reasonable basis to do so, Conrad recommended the entity's note agreements to his customers as a safe and suitable investment. Conrad distributed false and misleading sales literature to several of his customers. While recommending the entity's investments to his customers, Conrad provided them with the entity's sales literature in the form of a tri-fold brochure. The brochure, however, contained several unwarranted and misleading statements, failed to disclose any risks involved in the investments, and guaranteed the products would succeed. Such statements helped form the basis of Conrad's recommendations to his customers, even though Conrad did not verify these claims by the entity prior to recommending and selling the note agreements to his customers.
