Disclosure Summary

Disclosure Information

What you should know about reported disclosure events:

(1) Certain thresholds must be met before an event is reported to IARD, for example:

- A law enforcement agency must file formal charges before an Investment Adviser Representative is required to report a particular criminal event.;
- A customer dispute must involve allegations that an Investment Adviser Representative engaged in activity that violates certain rules or conduct governing the industry and that the activity resulted in damages of at least $5,000.

(2) Disclosure events in IAPD reports come from different sources:

As mentioned in the "About IAPD" section on page 1 of this report, information contained in IAPD comes from Investment Adviser Representatives, firms and regulators. When more than one of these sources reports information for the same disclosure event, all versions of the event will appear in the IAPD report. The different versions will be separated by a solid line with the reporting source labeled.

(3) There are different statuses and dispositions for disclosure events:

- A disclosure event may have a status of pending, on appeal, or final.
  - A "pending" disclosure event involves allegations that have not been proven or formally adjudicated.
  - A disclosure event that is "on appeal" involves allegations that have been adjudicated but are currently being appealed.
  - A "final" disclosure event has been concluded and its resolution is not subject to change.
- A final disclosure event generally has a disposition of adjudicated, settled or otherwise resolved.
  - An "adjudicated" matter includes a disposition by (1) a court of law in a criminal or civil matter, or (2) an administrative panel in an action brought by a regulator that is contested by the party charged with some alleged wrongdoing.
  - A "settled" matter generally represents a disposition wherein the parties involved in a dispute reach an agreement to resolve the matter. Please note that Investment Adviser Representatives and firms may choose to settle customer disputes or regulatory matters for business or other reasons.
  - A "resolved" matter usually includes a disposition wherein no payment is made to the customer or there is no finding of wrongdoing on the part of the Investment Adviser Representative. Such matters generally involve customer disputes.

(4) You may wish to contact the Investment Adviser Representatives to obtain further information regarding any of the disclosure events contained in this IAPD report.

Reporting Source: Regulator

Regulatory Action Initiated By: FINRA

Sanction(s) Sought:

Date Initiated: 10/18/2022

Docket/Case Number: 2021072096101

Employing firm when activity occurred which led to the regulatory action: MORGAN STANLEY SMITH BARNEY LLC

Product Type: No Product

Allegations: Without admitting or denying the findings, Sevcik consented to the sanctions and to the entry of findings that he caused his member firm to maintain inaccurate books and records by changing the representative code for trades, causing the trade confirmations to show an inaccurate representative code. The findings stated that Sevcik entered into an agreement with a retired representative through which he agreed to service certain customer accounts, including executing trades for those accounts, under a joint representative code that he shared with the retired representative. Sevcik also entered into a separate agreement with another retired representative through which he agreed to service additional customer accounts, including executing trades for those accounts, under a joint representative code that he shared with the retired representative. Each agreement set forth what percentages of the commissions each representative would earn on trades placed using the applicable joint representative code. Although the firm's system correctly prepopulated the trades with the applicable joint representative codes, Sevcik entered the transactions under different representative codes through which he received a higher percentage of commissions than what he was entitled to receive pursuant to the agreements. Sevcik negligently failed to verify whether the transactions at issue were subject to his agreements with the retired representatives. As a result, the firm's trade confirmations inaccurately reflected Sevcik's personal representative code or another representative code instead of the joint representative codes that Sevcik shared with the retired representatives. Sevcik's actions resulted in his receiving higher commissions from the trades than what he was entitled to receive pursuant to the agreements. The firm has since reimbursed the retired representatives.

Allegations: Without admitting or denying the findings, Registered Representative (RR) consented to the sanctions and to the entry of findings that he changed the representative code for trades, causing the trade confirmations to show an inaccurate representative code. The findings stated that RR entered into an agreement through which he agreed to service certain customer accounts, including executing trades for those accounts, under a joint representative code that he shared with a retired representative. The agreement set forth what percentages of the commissions each representative would earn on trades placed using the joint representative code. RR placed a total of 178 trades in accounts that were covered by the agreement using different representative codes. Specifically, although the firm's system correctly prepopulated the trades with the applicable joint representative code, RR changed the code for 178 trades to representative codes under which he received a higher commission percentage than he would have received had he used the joint representative code that he shared with the retired representative. RR mistakenly believed that he was permitted to change the code on the trades because his member firm had transferred certain accounts that were subject to the agreement to other registered representatives of the firm, who were not part of the agreement with the retired representative. As a result, RR caused the firm to maintain inaccurate books and records. The firm has since reimbursed the retired representative.
