Disclosure Summary

Disclosure Information

What you should know about reported disclosure events:

(1) Certain thresholds must be met before an event is reported to IARD, for example:

- A law enforcement agency must file formal charges before an Investment Adviser Representative is required to report a particular criminal event.;
- A customer dispute must involve allegations that an Investment Adviser Representative engaged in activity that violates certain rules or conduct governing the industry and that the activity resulted in damages of at least $5,000.

(2) Disclosure events in IAPD reports come from different sources:

As mentioned in the "About IAPD" section on page 1 of this report, information contained in IAPD comes from Investment Adviser Representatives, firms and regulators. When more than one of these sources reports information for the same disclosure event, all versions of the event will appear in the IAPD report. The different versions will be separated by a solid line with the reporting source labeled.

(3) There are different statuses and dispositions for disclosure events:

- A disclosure event may have a status of pending, on appeal, or final.
  - A "pending" disclosure event involves allegations that have not been proven or formally adjudicated.
  - A disclosure event that is "on appeal" involves allegations that have been adjudicated but are currently being appealed.
  - A "final" disclosure event has been concluded and its resolution is not subject to change.
- A final disclosure event generally has a disposition of adjudicated, settled or otherwise resolved.
  - An "adjudicated" matter includes a disposition by (1) a court of law in a criminal or civil matter, or (2) an administrative panel in an action brought by a regulator that is contested by the party charged with some alleged wrongdoing.
  - A "settled" matter generally represents a disposition wherein the parties involved in a dispute reach an agreement to resolve the matter. Please note that Investment Adviser Representatives and firms may choose to settle customer disputes or regulatory matters for business or other reasons.
  - A "resolved" matter usually includes a disposition wherein no payment is made to the customer or there is no finding of wrongdoing on the part of the Investment Adviser Representative. Such matters generally involve customer disputes.

Reporting Source: Individual

Employing firm when activities occurred which led to the complaint: AXA Advisors, LLC.

Allegations: AXA made me aware of a written complaint made by a former client, [REDACTED], alleging that a product was not suitable by a second opinion. An internal investigation was held and it was found that this claim had no basis. As an act of good faith, AXA settled the affair for a total of $10,288.25 to which I was not required to make any contribution.

During June of 2014, I voluntarily resigned from my Financial Professional positional at AXA Advisors. This was a decision unrelated to any interaction with any clients I had during my time there.

On May 26, 2015 I was made aware by a letter from AXA Advisors that a former client filed a complaint against a partnering advisor and me regarding a variable annuity we sold him over a year prior.

On June 2, 2015 I received a second letter from AXA stating that the complaint had been concluded through an internal investigation at AXA which included a copy of my updated Form U5 reflecting its conclusion.

On June 4, 2015 I received I letter from FINRA indicating that it would be conducting its own review of the complaint. The letter outlined a list of deliverable items to FINRA. Working in tandem with AXA, I was able to provide this information to FINRA in a timely manner.

On June 14, 2015 I received a final letter from AXA stating again that the complaint had been concluded. Enclosed in this letter was a copy of my most recent Form U5 reflecting the conclusion of the complaint. I was informed that the complaint was found to have no basis.

Since these dates, I have not been made aware of any additional complaints made by this client or any others. I have also not been made aware of any correspondence made by AXA to the client who made the complaint. I was not a part of any settlement agreement. Any settlement made did not require any contributions from myself or any Errors and Omissions Insurance coverage. In an attempt to retrieve any other possible correspondence with the client, I have made multiple requests to AXA to provide. I have provided all documentation that AXA has provided me.

Product Type: Annuity-Variable

Alleged Damages: $0.00
